CASTLE GEYSER is one of the most imposing sights of Yellowstone Park. It is rumbling and boiling nearly all the time, emitting a volume of boiling water every few minutes to the height of 10 or 15 ft. above the top of the chimney of a cone which is a castle like formation of rock some forty feet in height, with a funnel on top resembling a chimney 25 feet high. It has evidently at some previous time been one of the most powerful vent holes for the escape of the boiling waters of the cauldrons below this wonderful "Fire Hole Basin," in America's "Wonderland." Grotto geyser is not over 200 yards from Giant geyser and is well described by its name, it being a delightful place to play hide and seek if one can have instinct sufficient to get out betimes before the eruptions take place which come without a moment's warning, and often rise in a great column of water 60 feet high. Many basins exist near by which are continually filled with boiling water.
